

Course Doubled In Aerial Derby Across Country

Race, Starting To-morrow at 9 A. M., to Cover 4,500 Miles From One Coast to the Other and Back

70 'Planes to Take Part

Society Women to Aid in Army Ceremonies at Roosevelt Field, L. I.

The greatest aerial race in history starts from Roosevelt Field, L. I., and San Francisco, at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. The contestants will be started on the 4,500 mile race from Roosevelt Field to San Francisco and return by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commander of the Department of the East and Brigadier General William Mitchell, U. S. Air Service. A group of society women, headed by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, will aid in the starting ceremonies.

The order extending the race to a double flight across the continent was issued yesterday by Major General Charles T. Mencher, director of Air Service, and made public through the American Flying Club, it reads:

"Not only all concerned that machines returning from the transcontinental test will be flown over the same route, starting at each terminus simultaneously under the same conditions as in the first race. Contestants reaching destination successfully must make application within two days of arrival to the commanding officer of the terminus."

The revised official list of entries in the race show fifty-four starters from Lincoln and sixteen from San Francisco. In order to get the large number of machines away from Roosevelt Field it has been decided to line them up according to the official number in the race. General Barry will start them off at two minute intervals.

Public May See Start

As in the New York-Toronto race, the public will be permitted to witness the start of the flight at Roosevelt Field from a roped-off space.

San Francisco entries were advised yesterday that the control station at Westcott, Wyo., had been changed to Rawlins.

A storm warning was received yesterday predicting disturbances from the Delaware Breakwater to Eastport, Me., and down the St. Lawrence Valley. It was said, however, that nothing but very stormy weather would delay the start of the race.

Entries Nos. 1, 13 and 26 have been withdrawn. No. 13 was the machine piloted by Colonel T. F. Dodd, which was smashed in landing at Philadelphia Sunday and killed Colonel Dodd. No. 1 was also crashed at Philadelphia Sunday and killed Colonel Dodd. No. 26 was also crashed at Philadelphia Sunday and killed Colonel Dodd.

Major Henry Abille, flying a DH-4 from Belleville, Ill., to participate in the race, crashed at Buffalo yesterday morning and broke both wings of his plane. He was not injured. An effort is being made to fit new wings from the aero supply depot at Buffalo so that he will be able to start in the race.

French Atchefs' Plane Crashes

Among the new arrivals at Mineola yesterday were: Captain V. H. Saunders, flying a Martin bomber; Captain H. C. Drayton, DH-4, from Aberdeen, Md.; Captain Felix Stiehl, DH-4, from Washington; Lieutenant Colonel J. M. Reynolds, DH-4, from Bolling Field, and Lieutenant J. B. Machie, DH-4, from Rantoul, Ill.

Lieutenant D. B. Gish, who will pilot Captain De La Vergne, the French air attaché, in a DH-4, crashed at Baltimore in a forced landing. The two officers came on by train and will start in another machine.

Maps for pilots in the race arrived in Mineola yesterday. They were prepared by the Information Group of the Air Service. They showed magnetic variations and corrections for each control station, the true compass bearing between each of the stops, and all other information necessary to the flight.

Mrs. Wanamaker Gets a Bomb; Butler Arrested

Red and Black Powder

Mrs. Wanamaker lifted the cotton and found the box was partly filled with a red and black powder and in the center a brass tube, which investigation showed was tamped full of black powder. The red powder, she learned by a cautious sniff, was red pepper, and she was fairly certain the black powder was an explosive.

Mrs. Wanamaker decided on the spot that she had a narrow escape from being blinded. Her first action was to telephone her husband, who is a special deputy police commissioner.

Under instructions from him, his valet, George Ellis, carried the package to Police Headquarters, where it was turned over to Detective Sergeant James Gagan and Acting Detective Sergeant Edward Cooper and Charles Newman, of the bomb squad.

The detective talked with Mrs. Wanamaker and with Mary O'Brien. They searched the town house of the Wanamakers in 37 West Fifty-sixth Street. In a small collar workshop they found some crudely made toys. They were told that the former butler, Kurth, had made them. They scanned the floor as carefully as any detectives of fiction. They found a number of broken match sticks, from which the heads were missing. In the boiler they found some more of these match sticks lying at the edge of a fire which had burned out soon after it was started.

Bit of Newspaper Felt In

In an ashen their search revealed a piece of newspaper. It matched a piece of raggedly torn newspaper found inside the bomb. The match sticks, after a deal of patient effort, were found to dovetail with the match heads in the bomb. The detectives found that the bomb had been mailed in the vicinity of the Wanamaker store.

On Thursday last Kurth appeared at the Wanamaker town house and asked if there was any mail addressed to him. A servant told him there wasn't, but that two gentlemen were there to see him. About that time the gentlemen approached Kurth from the rear and announced their presence by seizing each one, an arm of the former Wanamaker butler.

Kurth demanded to know what they were trying to do. They showed him their police shields, but refused to tell him why he was under arrest. They escorted him to his home, which they searched in his presence.

Mrs. Kurth, frightened at their actions, asked what it was all about. The detective did not answer her, but Kurth said it was nothing; everything would be all right. Then they took him to 32 West Fifty-eighth Street, where he had told them he had obtained a position as superintendent of a new apartment house. They searched his room there.

Lost Wines and Liquors

Later they reported that they had found several hundred dollars' worth of wines and liquors and some electric light fixtures, all of which was identified as the property of Mr. Wanamaker. They also found a small derringer, a single-shot pistol. The next day Kurth was arraigned in Yorkville Court on the charge of grand larceny, and Magistrate Douglas held him for the grand jury in $500. Then and only then did the detectives mention the bomb to Kurth. At first he denied all knowledge of it vehemently. Then, abruptly, according to the detectives he told them all about it.

The detectives told Assistant District Attorney Alfred Talley yesterday that

Harvard Confers Honorary Degree On Belgian Prelate

Cardinal Mercier Receives Ovation. Delivers Address in French at Cambridge and Returns to New York

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Cardinal Mercier was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws to-day by Harvard University, which conferred a similar honor upon King Albert of Belgium yesterday.

The Cardinal was accompanied to Sanders Theatre by President Lowell, Cardinal O'Connell and other distinguished guests, and his appearance started an ovation that continued several minutes. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony there was a demonstration more enthusiastic than the first.

In conferring the degree President Lowell termed the Cardinal "a man who in the desolation of his country stood as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." The Cardinal, at the suggestion of President Lowell, made his address of acceptance in French.

"Hundreds of your comrades left for war, for the horrors of bloodshed. Many of your elders helped with the Commission for Belgian Relief."

"I had the honor of receiving myself several of the heroic people who were giving their service to Belgium without remuneration. I thank you and I congratulate you."

"Never, I believe, have young men had such educative lessons as those which you have had from the drama through which we have passed. Not only have individuals spent themselves for other individuals, but whole nations took up arms, not for territorial interests or political aims, but because Germany had held up to society a flag smeared by the blood of hundreds of innocent peoples, a flag which had been burned by asphyxiating gases, a flag soiled by the ashes of devastated towns, and had presented this black flag as the banner of civilization."

"The peace which was signed is not definitive. There is another ideal to be attained, and we are now on a volcano. You will have to collaborate for a definite peace and be soldiers fighting for right and honor."

Leaves for New York

"When our University of Louvain became the prey of the flames the Institute de France formed a committee for the reconstruction of our ruins. Your president was good enough to be one of the collaborators for restoring our university. This collaboration gave me personally a great moral relief, for which I am profoundly grateful."

After the ceremony the Cardinal visited the Widener Memorial Library, where he looked with great interest at four copies of the Bible. Later he was the guest of President Lowell at tea. He left for New York to-night.

After a brief rest the Cardinal will attend the last event of a busy day, a dinner tendered him at the Plaza by the Inter-Racial Council, which plans to give the visiting prelate a demonstration of the fact that American cities harbor some of the largest European communities in the world. ## 4 Bank Clerks Save $61,000, Seize Bandits

Daring Hold-up at Broadway and Prince Street Frustrated by Alertness of Cashier and Messengers

Robbers Use Red Pepper

Shots Fired Over Heads of Noonday Crowds in City's Busy Financial District

Three highwaymen pushed their way through the crowd at Broadway and Prince Street about noon yesterday, threw red pepper and snuff into the eyes of four messengers of the Bank of Naples and tried to grab $61,000 which was being carried to the Metropolitan Bank on the corner. The attempt was frustrated by Roberto Cossa, cashier of the institution, and Nicolai Gjorno, who fired three shots at the robbers, two of whom were captured.

Mr. Cossa and Mr. Gjorno, with Elbert Esposito and Kapio Capio, carrying $61,000 in small bills, left the Bank of Naples at Spring Street and Broadway shortly before noon. The currency was carried in two shoe boxes. Thousands of persons were pouring out of the office buildings in the wholesale district for lunch and the messengers had to force their way through the throng.

When the four messengers started up Broadway two young men walked in front of them and an elderly man followed. Mr. Cossa, who was in the rear, did not see anything suspicious until the group neared Prince Street. Then the young men in front turned and hurled handfuls of pepper and snuff into the faces of the messengers.

The elderly man hoped past Mr. Cossa and tried to snatch the packages of currency from the messengers.

Gjorno realized that a hold-up was being attempted as soon as the highwaymen turned and faced him. He shouted a warning and the pepper did not reach the eyes of his companions. As he cried the alarm he pulled his revolver and rushed at the hold-up men. At the sight of the gun they turned and ran through the crowd.

Gjorno fired three shots in the air and gave chase. He and Cossa grabbed two men after running about 200 feet and subdued them after a struggle. They were turned over to the police and are being held. The third bandit, described by the bank employees as an elderly man, made his escape.

The prisoners who were brought to Police Headquarters gave their names as Antonio Furrar, of Akron, Ohio, and John Zuttagni, a grocer, of 69 Central Avenue, Brooklyn. Furrar told the police that he only arrived in New York yesterday and declined to discuss his past. According to the police, the men have never been arrested before. A general alarm was sent out for the third man. The police had an excellent description of him.

Detectives characterized the attempted hold-up as one of the boldest ever witnessed in the crowded wholesale district.

Edward Maglione, secretary of the New York branch of the Bank of Naples, said:

"Luckily one of the messengers saw the men start to throw the blinding powders. He shouted the warning and the others closed their eyes in time to avoid it. We lost nothing, but it was a narrow escape. Mr. Cossa, the cashier, has been highly complimented for coolly meeting the men."

The Bank of Naples was founded in 1839 and is one of the oldest banking institutions in the world. Its New York branch was opened about twenty years ago and does a large business with the Italians.

Gen. O'Ryan Criticizes Outfitting of Soldiers

Says 27th Got No American Materials Until After Signing of Armistice

Major General John F. O'Ryan criticized the outfitting of the American soldier during the war, urged preparedness and commended the work of the Y. M. C. A. in an address last night at the Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

General O'Ryan said the 27th Division was outfitted, clothed and equipped by the British with British material during the war, urged preparedness and commended the work of the Y. M. C. A. in an address last night at the Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

"This same condition will happen again unless we keep up our preparedness," continued the general. "An intellectual public will decide whether to be wary about the expense of preparedness or to go through with such a programme, knowing the benefits to be derived from the preparation of any external or internal aggression."

General O'Ryan said the 27th Division was the best in the world war.

Schinasi Left Most of His Estate to Charity

Solomon Schinasi, the millionaire cigarette manufacturer, whose funeral was held yesterday, left his wife $50,000 a year and willed the remainder of his $1,000,000 estate to his son, Leon, and devoted himself to charity.

Leon Schinasi, the son of the late Solomon Schinasi, announced after the interment in Woodlawn Cemetery that he would at once retire from business and devote himself to carrying out the charitable programme mapped out by his father.

For the son himself the elder Schinasi left the three palatial residences in New York, Paris and Atlantic City. The testator recommended that the son remember every close friend and every faithful servant.

Jane Martin Honored By Advertising Men

Miss Jane Martin, president of the League of Advertising Women, and advertising manager for the Sperry & Hutchinson Company, has captured another honor. In the business world, through her election as member of the executive committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, this is the first time that a woman has ever held this important office.

The New York delegates to the recent convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs in New Orleans worked to a man for her election, and when she was elected, she presented her with a silver loving cup.

With her ten thousand dollar salary Miss Martin has long been famous as the highest paid woman in the advertising business. She is a severe critic toward the majority of her fellow workers in business life.

"Women do not know how to work," she said recently. "They don't try to. They drift along, content to be stenographers all their days. If they were capable of a good high wage, they would not be content with their employers would grant it to them."

Newark Man Murders Wife, Kills Himself

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Anna Fahner, of 139 Sixteenth Avenue, was washing to-day when her brother Albert Lay, a steel worker, appeared and offered her his watch. She refused. He said: "Well, then, good-bye forever," and left fifteen minutes later. Mrs. Fahner, who had hurried to his home at 652 South Twentieth Street, found his wife mortally wounded and lay dead. Lay had shot his wife four times, and when she fell dying in the yard had gone upstairs and sent a bullet into his brain.

Mrs. Fahner, giving her version of the tragedy which orphaned six children, said that seven years ago her brother had undergone an operation on his head, and that only yesterday she had advised his family to have him examined.

Tartar on Teeth Shows You Leave the Film

A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to show you its effects. See coupon.

Remove the Film

Film is the basis of tartar. It is the source of discolored teeth and decay.

In brushing teeth you leave a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Your tooth paste cannot dissolve it. Most tooth troubles are now traced to that clinging film.

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So the one great object in cleaning teeth should be to end that film.

Dental science, after years of searching has found a way to do that. For home use the way is now embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent.

The results are known. Convincing, clinical and laboratory tests have proved them beyond question. Leading dentists everywhere now advocate its use.

A 10-Day Test Supplied

We now send a 10-Day Tube to anyone who asks. Thus we are starting countless people toward cleaner, safer teeth.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object is to dissolve the film, then to day by day combat it.

The way seems simple, but pepsin must be activated. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. It is the invention of a harmless activating method which makes pepsin possible. That, with other Pepsodent ingredients, is doing now what was never done before.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Read the book we send you. Learn the reason for these things. Then judge for yourself if you want your teeth kept in that way always. Cut out the coupon now.

See how teeth glisten when the film is gone. It is film that makes teeth look dirty. It is film that is the source of most tooth troubles.
